An Astrological Weekend with Verena Bachmann

February 7 & 8, 2009

Pluto, Saturn and the Nodes

Verena's focus is timely for astrologers with Pluto finally settling into Capricorn for the next 16 years. In 2009 the North Node also ingress into ♄ and retrogrades towards Pluto. Saturn the ruler of ♄ is building to its square with Pluto. This weekend Verena will focus on Saturn and the Lunar Nodes and their heightened significance and sensitivity during this transit of Pluto through ♄, both individually and collectively.

February 7 Reworking Saturn with Pluto in Capricorn

Pluto's passage through Capricorn will confront our liability and reliability on the deepest level. It will also test our ability to create and maintain structures and boundaries in a healthy way. And it will be Saturn, its ruler that we will need to understand more deeply to capitalize on the outcome of this transit in a climate of fear. How do we know Saturn and how might we begin to understand another face of this archetype that can assist us as Pluto challenges our relationship to the world, its rules, systems and leaders

February 8 The Lunar Nodes: A Date with Destiny

The axis of the nodes helps us to focus on our authentic path, a valuable insight in an age of when genuineness, integrity and self management will be imperative. Understanding the Lunar Nodes gives us insights about our soul's intention for life. They symbolize the gifts and abilities we bring along as well as the tasks we are asked to fulfil. In this workshop, we will explore the meaning of the nodal axis in our chart; learn what it shows us about our individual path of life, its gifts and challenges. We will also examine times in our life, when destiny intervened, and the role the Lunar Nodes played in those experiences.
